So How Do We Get There?

- Know existing conditions
- Evaluate community readiness
- Define a goal
- Devise a great campaign
- Coalition building
- Advocacy
- Media outreach

Know Existing Conditions

Take inventory of non-motorized conditions in your community – Both physical and political

Physical Infrastructure

- Where are the existing facilities and what is their condition?
- What destinations do you need to reach by walking/biking?

Political Infrastructure

- What is the political climate?
- How is policy made/changed?

On the Ground Assessments are Key

Such as:

- ✓ Promoting Active Communities (PAC)
- ✓ Bicycle Friendly Community
- ✓ Safe Routes to School walking/biking audits
- ✓ Corridor Studies
- ✓ Others

Lays the foundation for important policy changes
Helps to target resources
Provides a focus for advocacy
Gets coalition members engaged

Get the Total Picture

- On-the Ground Assessments are key

- Community input (surveys, open houses, public meetings, forums, etc.)

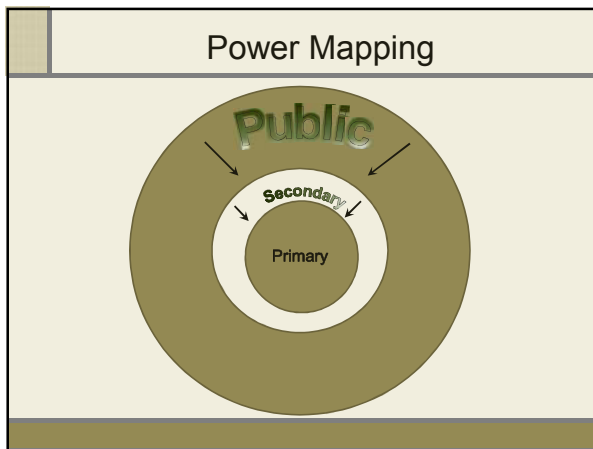

What does the public want?

Where are you on the “Political Readiness” Scale?

Illustration: LSL Planning, Inc.

Evaluating your Political Infrastructure Identify Key Players: Power Mapping

- Who is with you and who is not quite there . . . YET?
- Identify the “decision makers”
- When and where are decisions made?

Determine Your Goal

Evaluate:

1. Existing conditions results
2. Community survey data
3. Your power mapping results

Taken all together, what goal is realistic?

Define Your Goal

What do you want?

- A Resolution of Support?
 (Understanding and belief in the cause)
- Administrative Policy?
 (Internal guidance from the top under current administration)
- An Ordinance?
 (Transcends elected officials term; integrated into long-term policies and procedures)

Devise a Great Campaign

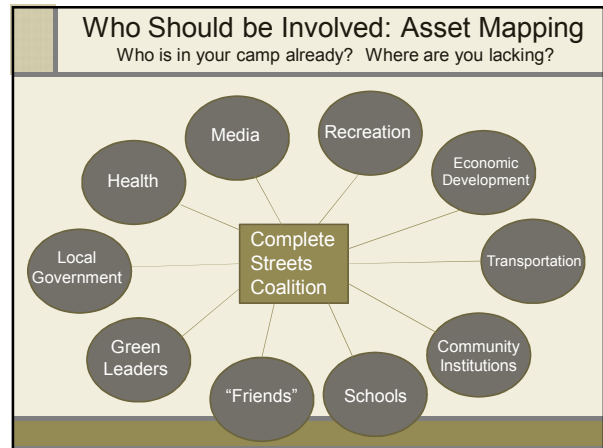

How are you going to reach your goal?

- Articulating your Message
- Who needs to hear the message?
 From: Power mapping results
- Who will deliver the message?
 From: Asset mapping results
- How will it be delivered?
Communications strategy

Build a Coalition

A Strong Coalition:

- Provides a base of support
- Many diverse voices
- Generating a consistent message
- A place to gather ongoing input from members, monitor progress and decide next steps

Not Only Diverse Backgrounds, But Personal Skills and Traits

- Charisma, public speaker
- Organizer, logistics
- Well-connected in community
- Writer, Creative Flair
- Steadfast “Fire-keeper”
- Fundraiser, Grant Writer

Include time for your group to assess their strengths and identify the “gaps”

Building a Strong Coalition

- Official Sign-up to the group
- Lay out expectations at the outset:
- Institute a formal structure and decision-making process

Don't forget: Who will be in charge when things start “moving” fast?

- Keep tasks simple and clear:
 for example: --Send an e-mail --Circulate a petition, --Get resolution of support from other groups

Effective Advocacy

- Reach out to closely aligned groups (remember asset map!)
- Go to their meetings
- Provide talking points, sample letters, etc.

Effective Advocacy

- Convey message repeatedly but in new ways
 Tailor message according to messenger and audience. (e.g., Doctors = Support more physical activity; Law enforcement = public safety; Seniors = their personal stories of challenges in getting around)
- Keep in mind general public does not know “complete streets,” so tie it back to familiar terms, such as “safety.”
- Be sure to tell your “story”
- Patience and persistence is the key

Be Prepared for Brevity

Your “stair speech” ~ 3-4 sentences

- Identify the problem
- What is the solution
- What specifically they can do about it
- Who cares and what’s at stake?

Media Advocacy

Tools of the Trade:

- Letters to the Editor
- Op-Ed
- Editorial Boards
- News Releases
- News Conferences
- Social Media: Facebook, Twitter, MySpace, Pod-casts

Media Advocacy

Basic Tips

- Never assume anything is “Off the Record”
- Treat reporters well
 - Mind their deadlines
 - Compliments please (for a job well done)
 - Provide key messages
- Communication should be: Clear, Concise, Connected, Compelling, Contrasting, and Credible
- Provide Facts, but don’t forget the Story!
